Innovative team and leadership development solutions.

BRIDGING BOUNDARIES™

Build relationships through an interactive project management experience. Bridging Boundaries presents limited communications and resources, as well as a tight timeline, to execute the creation of a whole bridge with specifications.

How Does It Work?

Teams are challenged to overcome communication boundaries to achieve the common vision of completing a bridge-building project on time and to specifications. The experience requires teams to share information and learn how to effectively execute toward the end design goal while being physically separated. This is a powerful exercise in demonstrating the value of effectively managing change and working outside of silos.

How Do Participants Benefit?

- Build communication from a virtual or global perspective
- Break down silos
- Use creativity to solve problems
